

SOLVING MENSTRUAL, PREGNANCY AND FERTILITY PROBLEMS

- Do you know the secret of the fertility of the Duchess of York?

It was Royal Jelly – the food of the queen bee that makes it fat, sassy and long-lived!

- Did you know why Fergie chose royal jelly blended with exotic and aphrodisiac herbs?

After failure with standard fertility treatments Sarah, the Duchess of York, learned about Irena formulated by a remarkable English lady named Irene Stein, and gave birth to two princesses.

- Do you know from whom the Duchess learned about this product and its benefits?

Lady Diana. She used it and swore by it because it eliminated “morning sickness” in pregnancy with her firstborn, William, so she ordered it again for her second, shall we say, jelly baby.

- What was Harry in the news for, before his more recent escapades?

He was a jelly baby! That’s how he and other royal offspring were dubbed in the British popular tabloid press.

- Did other royals take this Irena product?

Yes indeed! The Queen took it “to give her energy and stave off fatigue,” and the Queen Mother did so for her general well-being. Prince Andrew was persuaded to take it as an aphrodisiac tonic. “Prince Philip believes it has helped with his long battle against arthritis.” Then the Saudi royal family decided to become customers as well!

If only King Henry VIII had this product available to him. It might have changed the course of English history!

How have lesser mortals reacted and responded to this Irena formula?

Counters fluid retention in the menstrual period – a natural diuretic

Susan Topping from Preston in Lancashire, England, after two devastating miscarriages tried the potion to combat depression. Within two months Susan was pregnant once more and subsequently was delighted to give birth to identical twin girls. The People newspaper reported Susan’s comments about her condition after a previous birth and the difference with the twins: “My hair fell out, my skin was dreadful and I looked really unhealthy, but with the jelly I felt great right through the twins’ pregnancy.”

Then there’s Lisa Evans. She says: “I grew up taking Royal Jelly and I have to admit that I took my vitality and great immunity for granted. Being a Primary School teacher, I was constantly exposed to colds and flu viruses and yet I rarely needed to take a day off sick. It was only when I became pregnant and a mother myself that I truly appreciated my daily ‘potion’ of Irena Royal Jelly. I had read all the books on what to expect when I was pregnant and resigned myself to bouts of morning sickness, fluid retention, the dreaded heartburn and exhaustion. They did not come!” Getting near to the time for delivery she was “panicked” by tales of 24-hour labour pains for the firstborn and was ready for the worst. But, “three hours later, Robyn was born and I couldn’t believe how quick it had all been.” With the second pregnancy she again had misgivings but as “the bump grew” even with swimming, running and dancing: “Still no morning sickness, still loads of energy! Must be the Irena and, of course, the Aerobic Oxygen I had been advised to take by Irene Stein.” And who’s Lisa? Irene Stein’s daughter!
